Reducing Food Waste,
One Household at a Time

A smart food tracking app that helps families save money, reduce waste, and eat better.

The Problem

30–40% of all food in the U.S. is wasted — costing families thousands each year while filling landfills.

$728

wasted per person per year

$2,913

wasted per family of four

30–40%

of U.S. food supply is wasted

$240B+

lost annually in the U.S.

Market Opportunity

A massive, untapped consumer problem — difficult to solve because it requires behavior change and lacks aligned incentives.

Limited Competition

Very few competitors in the U.S. are addressing food waste at the household level.

U.S. households — families with kids waste the most food per capita

Jessica, 34

Mother of two, works full-time.

Primary grocery shopper.

Buys bulk, shops weekly.

~80% of mothers are the primary grocery shoppers in households

Target User Persona

How we identified her:

- 10 in-depth user interviews
- Proto-persona mapping across 3 archetypes
- Highest food waste per capita among families
- Strong financial incentive to change behavior

Why she's our target user:

- Frequent grocery purchases (1-2x/week)
- Manages entire household food lifecycle
- Wasting $2,900+/year motivates action

Plan & Shop

Shops with a loose plan, driven by kids' preferences

Bring Home

Adds items to an overcrowded fridge
with unknown timelines

The Week

Life gets busy — work, kids, errands pile up

Check Fridge

Opens fridge, unsure what she has

Toss & Repeat

Throws out expired food, feels guilty, and the cycle repeats

Over-purchasing

- Buys 'just in case'
- Swayed by bulk deals & promotions
- No visibility into current stock

No Visibility

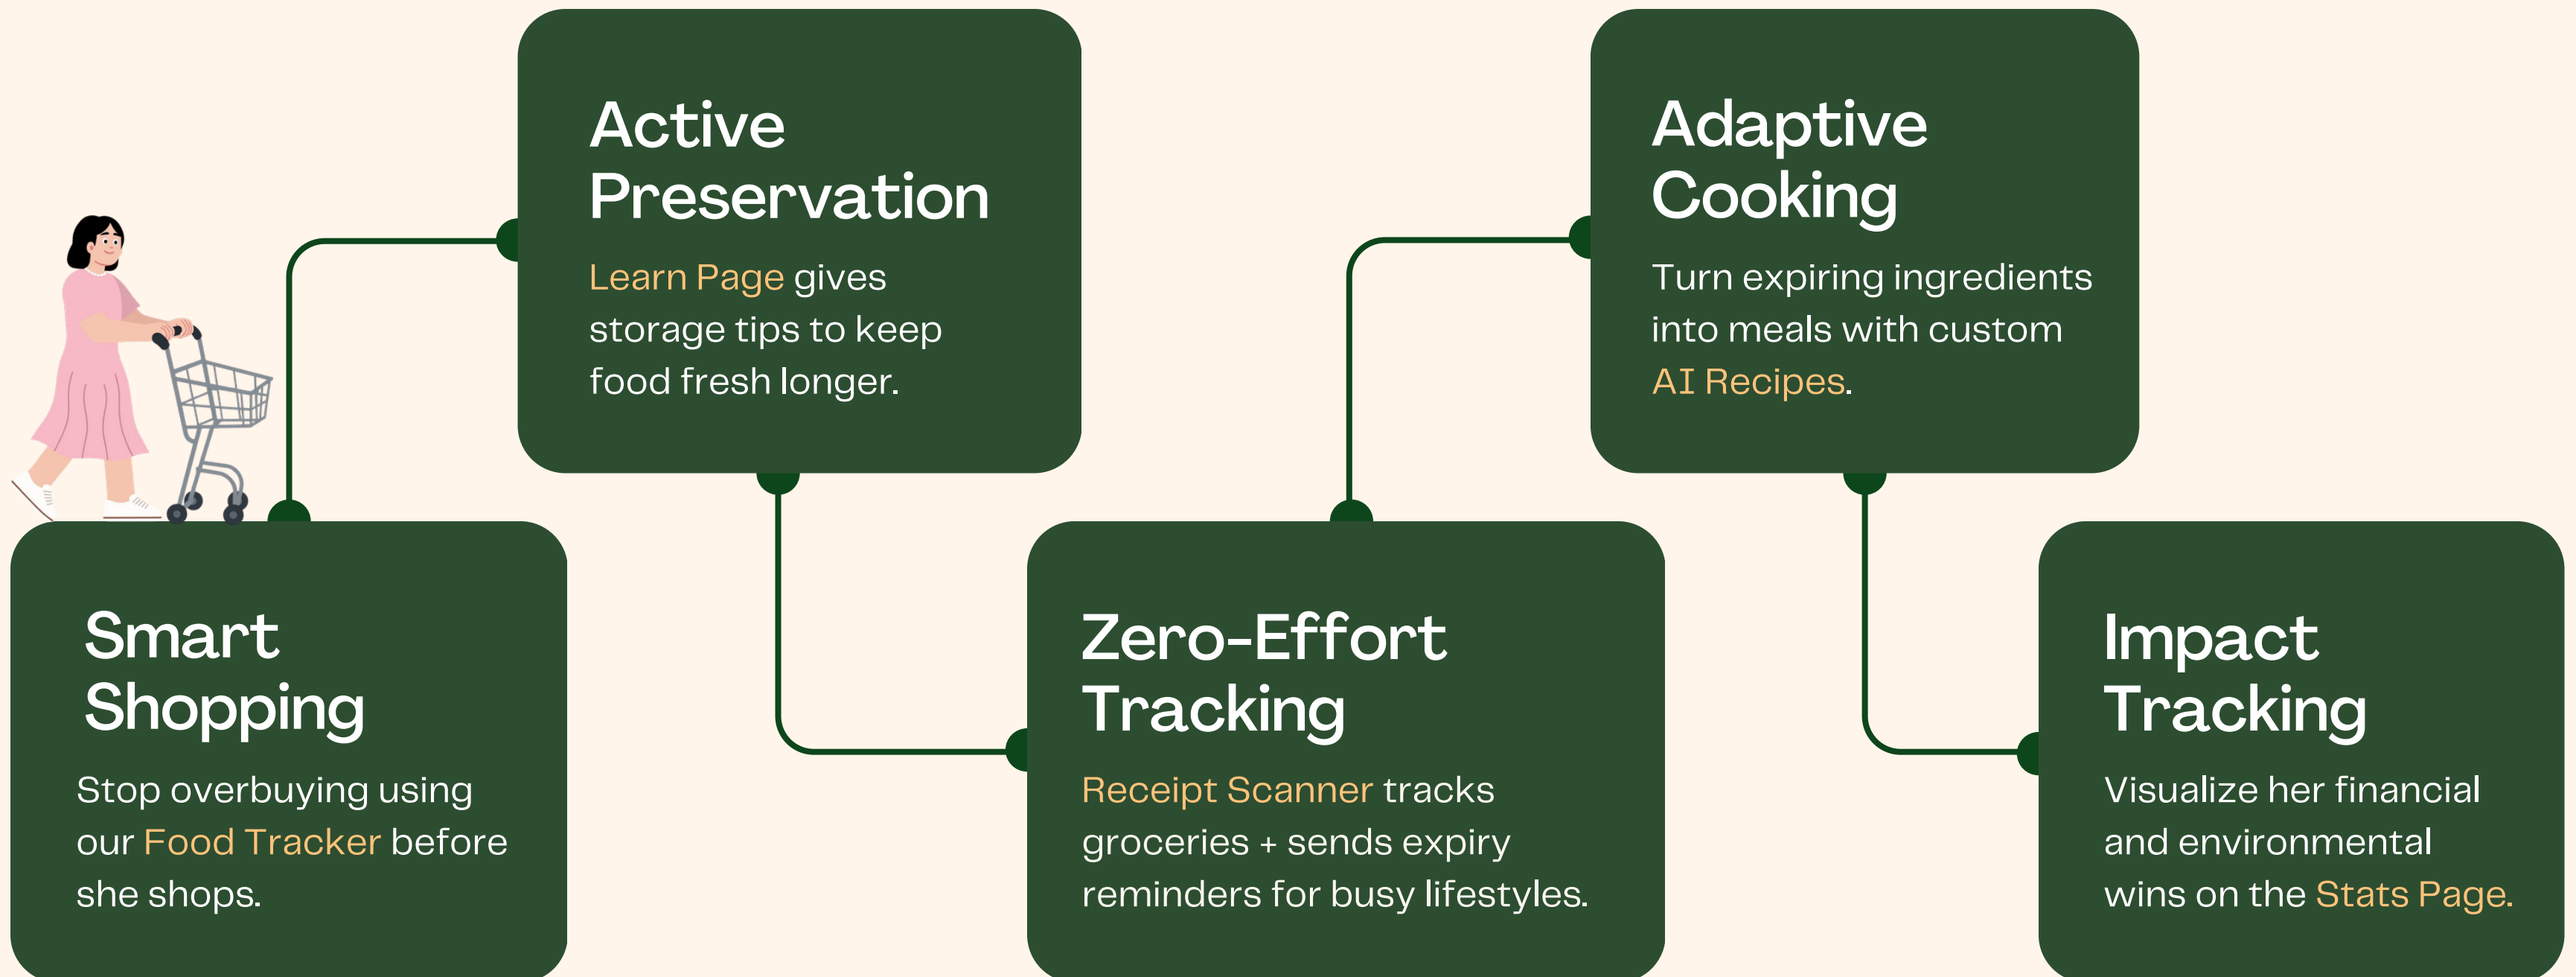

- Forgets fridge items
- Buys duplicates unknowingly
- No expiration tracking
